Wastewater district to set permit rules

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District plans to open the new year with another step toward sewerage for the county.

In addition, the district will receive the results of a study which may help save money in the completion of two parts of a project that will eventually link the Bay St. Louis and Waveland sewage systems.

At its Jan. 8 meeting, the first meeting of 1986, the district board and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors is expected to complete a plan for the permitting of individual onsite wastewater disposal systems.

"We're hoping to set the standards these systems must meet and to include some type of permitting system for them," said District Administrator Ethel Schott.

She said permitting will probably be handled by the district itself, while city building inspectors will handle any inspections in city areas without sewerage.

The district will probably be required to add an inspector to handle permitting inspections in the county.

"We also want to make some provisions in that plan for central sewerage in the county," she added.

Central sewerage in the county was proposed to the district by the State Bureau of Pollution Control several weeks ago after local realtors complained that they are no longer able to obtain septic tank permits from the County Board of Health.

Without those permits, federal financing can not be obtained and property can not be bought and sold.

Sewerage for several of the more populated sections of the county has been in the works for a number of years as part of the district's current five-part linkage project, but Pollution Control officials have stated that permitting individual treatment systems is only a temporary solution for current problems and central sewerage must eventually be constructed.

Schott said among the most important issues the two boards are expected to consider are financing central sewerage and the transition from individual treatment systems to central sewerage.

"Before we can settle this thing we will have to have an overall plan for a collection system and some provisions for financing its construction in the county," she explained.

"We're hoping to be able to work that out with the board of supervisors."

She said the two boards will also have to set up regulations for the transition from individual systems to central sewerage.

"We will have to make it clear that this is a temporary measure and that people will eventually be required to connect their homes and businesses to the central sewerage system," Schott explained.

On Jan. 10, Schott and board representatives will travel to Jacksonville, Fla., to meet with a team of engineers who will present the results of their review of the plans and specifications for segments III and IV of the district's linkage project.

Those two segments consist of the addition of several treatment units at Waveland's wastewater treatment plant, including a new aeration tank, a clarifyer and several Rotating Biological Contactors, which are purification devices.

The study, called value engineering, will recommend ways that the district can achieve the same treatment levels provided for in the present specifications while cutting the cost of the two segments.

About $6 million in US Environmental Protection Agency grant funds will probably be received in October or November and the two segments are expected to be bid as a single contract.

Also ahead for the district in 1986 is the completion of Segment I, which consists of improvements and construction of additional circulation lines at the Bay lagoon; and the beginning of work on installation of

Escapees discovered in New Orleans jail

An investigation by the Bay St. Louis Police Department led to the discovery of two men who had walked off a work detail last month while serving sentences with the Mississippi Department of Corrections.

Samuel Jordan and Kyle Boney, both 23, were being held in the New Orleans Central lockup under fictitious names for possession of illegal weapons.

Jordan was serving seven-year concurrent sentences for eight counts of burglary. He was arrested following the burglaries of several Bay St. Louis businesses including Mississippi Power Company, Hancock County Youth Court, the Haas law offices, the Superintendent of Education offices, The Sea Coast Echo and The Sun Herald office.

Boney was serving a 10-year sentence for one count of burglary and larceny and three counts of burglary of dwellings.

Both Jordan and Boney are suspects in six burglaries in Bay St. Louis and Waveland in the past two weeks.

Extradition hearings will be Jan. 9 for both Jordan and Boney with detainers from both the local law enforcement and the Mississippi Department of Corrections.

Assisting with the investigation were Mide Prendergast, Jimmy Varnell and Billy Fields of the Waveland Police Department.

Pearlington man dies, two injured in Slidell

BY DENA BISNETTE

A Pearlington man has been killed and two Bay St. Louis women remain hospitalized following a one-car accident in Slidell, La.

According to a spokesman for the St. Tammany Parish Sheriff's Department, Robert Jackson of Pearlington was a passenger in a 1986 Chevrolet being driven by Jeannette Ladner of Bay St. Louis.

The accident occurred at about 3:30 a.m. Saturday on US—190 about three miles west of Military Road in Slidell.

Jackson was killed and Ladner and a second passenger, Charlotte Carver of Bay St. Louis, were injured.

A spokesman for Northshore Regional Medical Center in Slidell said Ladner and Carver were both listed in stable condition Tuesday.

The cause of the accident is still being investigated by the St. Tammany Parish Sheriff's Department.

Legislation would change 16th Section lease

Representative Dick Hall of Jackson and Senator Bob Montgomery of Canton have introduced legislation which would increase revenues from Sixteenth Section lands.

The proposed legislation was developed in cooperation with Secretary of State Dick Molpus.

The proposed bills will require statutory changes as well as a constitutional amendment, which upon passage, will be presented to the voters for approval in November, 1986.

Under the legislation, the maximum term for all leases, except those required to be bid, will be increased from 25 years to 40 years.

Further, the options of the leaseholder and the school district to renew for 25 years does not change. The legislation also includes protection for school districts from losses on leases due to inflation with a requirement that leases be reevaluated every ten years.

"This legislation strikes a balance between the needs of those who lease the land and those who own the land," Molpus said.

"In this legislation there are adequate safeguards for the school districts and incentives for those who need the land to increase the monies generated off Sixteenth Section Land," Molpus added.

"We are finding that those who lease commercial and residential acreage are having difficulty in obtaining long-term financing. This is reducing the value of the land and, consequently, its price. This proposal is a logical refinement of existing statutes which should successfully address this problem," Molpus said.

Hall, one of the authors of the 1978 Sixteenth Section Reform Act, stressed that the legislation is an updating of existing law.

"The proposal is not an effort to open up the Act. It has a very specific intent of extending the maximum allowable lease period," Hall said.

"The longer term will address concerns expressed to us by leaseholders, school districts, developers, and those involved in lending. Our studies confirm that all other factors being equal, leasehold land can, with a longer term, be as attractive as any property."

Montgomery, noting that school districts throughout the state will benefit from this positive proposal, said, "I see this as an effort to provide our local school districts with a method for the optimal development of their Sixteenth Section lands. I see leaseholders also gaining the confidence they need to make long-term capital investments."

The legislation, if passed, will represent only the second lease term change since the passage of the 1978 Reform Act. The previous change adjusted the maximum lease term for churches.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION—Construction is underway for the widening and repaving of Central Avenue. The project got underway last week when the utility poles were moved to make way for the widening of the street. The 120-day contract includes the overlay and widening of the street as well as drainage work along the street from Washington Street to the city limits. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

'Speaking Oracles of God'

—I Peter 4:11

By W. Edwin Kearley, Minister

501 Pine St. — Bay St. Louis

THE PRICE OF DISCIPLESHIP (NO. 2)

In speaking of self-sacrifice Jesus says that we must bear our cross. The cross we bear is the pain we voluntarily suffer on behalf of others. The cross of Jesus meant this to him. Paul spoke to the Colossians of the gospel and of their conversion saying, "Whereof I, Paul, am made a minister; who now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh for his body's sake, which is the church; whereof I am made a minister, according to the dispensation of God which is given to me for you, to fulfill the word of God". (Col. 1:24-25)

Other than Christ, Paul voluntarily suffered more than any other character of the first century.

Every man must bear his own burden, endure his own thorn, but the cross may be escaped. However, without the cross there can be no crown!

Self-expression is a price of discipleship which must be paid. Jesus said, "And follow me." Only the negative life of a disciple involves restraint. The postitive life of a disciple requires activity. Christianity is not altogether repression; it is also expression. It is the cultivation of the higher self. A disciple of Christ is a most active, aggressive person.

As a disciple of Christ: (1) He must not go before the Christ; for that would be presumption. Presumption is "daring," (R.V.) shameless and irreverent daring (Epository Dictionary of New Testament Words, by W. E. Vine). Peter uses the word. "But chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, and despise government, presumptuous are they, self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities" (II Pet. 2:10). A disciple must be willing to be governed by Christ. (2) He must not turn aside from Christ. The result would be worldliness. (3) A disciple of Christ must not follow from afar. Such would exhibit cowardness and result in denial. (4) The faithful disciple will follow in nearness. This means to obey his words to tread in his steps (I Pet. 2:21-23).

May we now consider the cost of not following Christ. We would lose the joy of obedience as the Ethiopian nobleman experienced (Acts 8:39). There would be no access to the throne of God. (John 15:7) In the day of judgement, there will be no welcome plaudit (Matt. 25:21).

One may say, "Oh, it is such a costly thing to be a disciple of Christ!" This statement is true, but the way of sin is far more costly. "The way of the transgressor is hard." "The wages of sin is death." (Rom. 6:23) "...He that sows to the flesh reaps corruption." (Gal. 6:8) the lines included in the Segment II contract.

Won't you begin following Christ today?

"We hope to see an immediate improvement in the quality of the effluent at the Bay lagoon when Segment I is finished," Schott said.

By continuing the operation of the Bay lagoon rather than cutting it off from the system, the district has saved Bay St. Louis about $100,000 in sewer system tests. In addition, circulation in the lagoon will be able to change direction if there is a reason to hold effluent before sending it to the Waveland plant, such as during hurricanes or mechanical failures at the plant.

"This has been a long hard road over the past 20 years but the project is really becoming a reality," District Board Chairman John Longo Jr. said.

"Even though we haven't actually had any improvement in the water quality yet, there has definitely been improvements in the standards, testing and quality specifications for the district through the work of our administrator and staff."

"Now we always get A's on their work from state inspectors," Longo added.

Quotables by Cuevas

I really did not know politicians from Hancock County and the Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland could work so hard physically.

We are talking about the Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund benefit car wash, which was held last Saturday.

We do know several of them were complaining about being sore that evening and also the next day.

The public response was great, only thing there were just too few political leaders who showed for the very worthy event.

Those who gave their time and energy were State Senator Gene Taylor, Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Chancery Clerk Mike Necaise, Hancock Supervisors Bert Courrege and Sam Perniciaro, Circuit Clerk John Rutherford, the money keeper; Bay Mayor Vic Franckiewicz, Bay Councilmen Lisa Cowand and Charles Johnson, Waveland Aldermen Louie Smolensky and Bob Hubbard, and Bay Firefighter Terry McCrory.

Lori Byrd and Mary Harris assisted the car washers as runners for them in getting food and supplies.

Thanks to everyone who took the time to have their cars washed and made a donation, because we know that the more than $500 which was collected will be put to very good use.

A special thanks goes to Hancock Bank for the use of their parking lot.

It is our understanding the organizers are already discussing plans for another such event about the first week of December in 1986.

A rumor we have been hearing is that any elected official not participating will either have to give a $50 donation or show a doctor's certificate if they do not participate. Now that is only rumor at this stage.

We have heard of so many good deeds being done during this Christmas Season.

Wouldn't it be nice if the same attitudes of everyone could continue throughout the year?

This is something many of us should think about for the coming year.

During the few days before Christmas firefighters and Hancock County deputy sheriffs were busy assisting Santa deliver toys to many boys and girls of the area.

Andrew Lizana, director of the Hancock County Doll and Toys Fund said he would like to express thanks to all of his staff, Hancock deputies, Hancock firefighters, with a special mention to the many firefighters from BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON— It's rare that anyone in the legislative branch in Mississippi gives a fig about keeping elective officials in the executive branch in office.

But it has happened in the case of State Treasurer Bill Cole, who is getting unsolicited support from some lawmakers who believe he should be able to continue to serve in his post.

Under the one-term limitation on the treasurer in the 1890 State Constitution, Cole is scheduled to be put out on the street in 1988.

State Senator Alan Heflin of Forest became so concerned over the state losing the fiscal talents of the 37-year-old Cole that he has taken the lead in pushing for a constitutional amendment which would allow the treasurer to be re-elected.

"I don't think people like Bill Cole, with his version, knowledge of government and intelligence should be lost to the service of the state because of an antiquated provision in the constitution," Heflin says.

The Forest lawmaker, who has gotten eight or 10 other senators to join him in the introduction of the constitutional amendment removing the one-term limit on the treasurer's office, says the proposal is even more timely now that gubernatorial succession is gaining substantial support.

"If we are going to allow the people to vote on governor's succession, and I'm for it, it would leave only one office among state elected officials with a one-term limit, and that is the treasurer," Heflin pointed out.

The prohibition against treasurers' succession in the Mississippi Constitution is a holdover from 1890 when the former occupant of the office was indicted and tried for a $312,612 shortage in the state treasury.

That occurred only a couple of months before the constitutional convention that year.

Drafters of the constitution had barred both the treasurer and the state auditor from being re-elected, or succeeding each other.

That went on until 1966 when finally the Legislature submitted an amendment that was ratified by the people allowing the state auditor to seek re-election.

However, lawmakers left the prohibition against succession for the treasurer in the constitution.

There was speculation at the time as to why both state offices were not granted succession by legislators, but it is known that William Winter, then the state treasurer, did not push for removal of the one-term barrier.

Winter was planning to run for either lieutenant governor or governor in 1967, and there was believed to be significant opposition in the Legislature if Winter had sought to include himself in the amendment with the state auditor.

"Regardless of why it was not changed back in 1966, the result has been a game of musical chairs in the treasurer's office ever since and we have lost the chance for continuity in that position," Heflin said.

Cole had advocated several months ago that the job of treasurer be abolished as an elective office and made part of a new department of finance which would combine several fiscal functions under the governor.

Heflin said the proposal by Cole (and also supported by State Auditor Ray Mabus) "appears to be a good idea for the future, but we have to deal with what is possible right now in the Legislature, and I believe the best way to go is to change the constitution in 1986 to allow the treasurer to be re-elected."

He pointed out that unless an amendment for treasurer's succession is put on the ballot in November, 1986, "we will have another free-for-all for the job and we'll lose Bill Cole as well."

Evidently Cole has warmed up to the idea of seeking another term in the post if he is given the right of succession, and has already sounded out possible support in the House, assuming it will pass the Senate.

Heflin says he has gotten "excellent response" from those he has contacted in the Senate, and he foresees little problems for the amendment on his end of the Capitol.

TOY SAFETY

According to statistics provided by Attorney General Ed Pittman's Office of Consumer Protection, many children are injured each year in accidents associated with toys, fireworks, bicycles, three wheels, and other children products.

Statistics provided by the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection indicate that approximately 126,000 children were treated in hospital emergency rooms in 1984 for injuries associated with toys. Further, about 385,000 (children under 15 years of age) suffered bicycle related injuries; 101,500 injuries associated with sleds, skates, and skateboards.

There were 33 fatalities reported to U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission in 1984. Seven (7) of the fatalities reported involved children choking on balloons; other incidents involved electrocution when kites contacted power lines; choking on small balls; automobile collisions and children riding into swimming pools; fires involving video games; strangulation by cord on baby crib gyms/mobiles or sweaters caught on toy parts; neck compression or suffocation caused by toy chests; aspiration into windpipe from a marble; strangled on string attached to a toy whistle; and a child caught on fire from a water heater pilot while playing with a stuffed toy.

In 1984, the majority of the toy related injuries were lacerations, contusions and abrasions when the victims were hit by toys, or fell off, over, or into them.

The next largest category of injuries involved the ingestion or aspiration of small toys or parts of toys, or insertions of these objects into the nose and ears.

Most toy related injuries appeared to be fairly minor, in that about 2.5 percent of the injuries required hospitalization as compared to the 4.2 percent of hospitalization for all injuries treated in hospital emergency rooms in 1984.

While most toy-related injuries appear to be minor and are frequently the result of incidental contact with the toy, Attorney General Ed Pittman recommends the following steps be taken to reduce the likelihood of injury.

- Proper Selection. Choose the appropriate toy for the age of the child. When choosing a toy, keep in mind the child's age, mental development, and skill level at that time. Use any labeling information that has been provided on the toy packing as a guide in making the selection.

- Supervision. Keep all toys with small parts from children under the age of three (3) as well as older children who still put toys in their mouth. Teach older children to keep their toys away from younger children. Make sure that children play with riding toys in areas away from stairs, traffic, or pools.

- Storage. When not in use, all toys should be stored where they will not be stepped on or tripped over. Toys for older children should be stored so as to be inaccessible to younger children.

- Maintenance. Toys should be examined regularly. Broken toys should be repaired immediately or discarded.

Consumer Product Safety Commission and Toy Manufacturers of America recommends these guidelines for selecting a safe toy.

1) Select toys to suit the age, skills, abilities, and interests of the individual child. There are age recommendations on many toy packages; these recommendations sometimes reflect safety concerns as well as helping to choose stimulating, educational toys.

2) If supervision is required, be prepared to make that commitment and to set "ground rules" for play.

3) Instructions should be clear to you and, when appropriate, to the child.

4) Look for sturdy construction. When buying soft toys for young children, make sure you purchase a well-made item with eyes, nose, and any other small parts tightly secured.

5) For infants and toddlers, avoid toys with:

–small parts that children may put in their mouth.

–long strings or cords that may cause strangulation.

6) Avoid toys that shoot or propel objects that may injure eyes or get lodged in throats.

7) Arrows or darts used by children should have soft cork tips, rubber suction cups or other protective tips. Check to be sure the tips are securely attached to their shafts. Examine these periodically to insure the protective tips remain secured.

8) Electric toys with heating elements are recommended only for children over eight (8) years of age, and only as long as there is adult supervision.

9) Consider the surroundings in which the toy will be used. Is there sufficient toy storage and play space? Will young children be exposed to toys designed for older children? Remember younger children in the household may not know how to play with some toys safely.

For more information on toy safety, consumers should contact the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection by calling 354-6018 or 1-800-223-5615.

THE GIFT OF FREEDOM

Is there a gift greater than the gift of freedom?

A worthy question, particularly at Christmas time, the season of giving.

For six years now Mississippians have been giving the gift of freedom to their children in a special way. The gift has been special knowledge and appreciation of the American free enterprise system, passed on to the school children of Mississippi by hundreds of Mississippi business firms and individuals.

Gifts of freedom and economic opportunity have been passed on to children in almost every public school district and in almost every private school in Mississippi. These gifts have been passed on in the form of contributions to Mississippi's American Enterprise Center, a free enterprise education activity of the Mississippi Economic Council.

Mississippians decided six years ago that the gift of freedom and economic opportunity was, indeed, a worthy gift for our children. The "gift" has included free enterprise youth rallies for thousands of high school students, free enterprise visual aids materials for students in grades 1-12, a high school free enterprise curriculum supplement, special free enterprise emphasis on eight college and university campuses, and special free enterprise education training for the teachers of our children.

Toughlove chapter to meet in Biloxi

To the Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

Toughlove! Sounds like a paradox, but it isn't.

Toughlove is the name of a group of parents banding together to help each other find a solution to a common problem: rebellious behavior of their children, often caused by alcohol or drug abuse and often abetted by peer pressures.

Recently a chapter of Toughlove was formed in Gulfport. We help each other through group discussions, suggestions and mutual support.

Toughlove meets every Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. On Dec. 30 we will meet in the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce Building. Beginning Jan. 6, we will move to the Gulf Oaks Hospital in Biloxi as a permanent meeting place. For more information you may call 864-9885, or after 6 p.m. call 863-4566.

If you are troubled by your child's behavior you do not have to handle it alone. Come meet with us to see how it works. There are no dues or fees. The only requirement for membership is a desire for a happier life for you and your child.

Sincerely,
Donald C. Dale

Her father will be waiting up for her. But, unlike many times before, she won't dash in with reports of a wonderful evening. Her friends invited her to go riding after the party. She hesitated because the driver had been drinking, but what could be wrong with one trip through town? Besides she needed a ride home. If only she could have called her parents....

Approximately 46 teenagers will be killed this year in Mississippi by drinking and driving or riding with someone who does. It's your choice.

THE PRESIDENCY: ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

By Ronald W. Reagan

Editor's Note: The Constitution gives the president certain powers and duties – for example the veto power and the duty to inform Congress of the state of the union – but it is silent on presidential leadership. A president must lead on many fronts – in foreign affairs and in domestic policy, as a party leader and as a national leader. In this article, President Reagan reflects on the many different "roles and responsibilities" of the presidency.

For nearly 200 years, the Constitution has endured with relatively few amendments as a blueprint for freedom. In commemorating the Bicentennial of the Constitution we celebrate not simply the historic event that took place in Philadelphia on September 17, 1787, but the process by which we govern ourselves today. There is no better time than this Bicentennial period to refamiliarize ourselves with the Constitution and rededicate ourselves to the values it embodies.

The central challenge confronting the Framers of the Constitution was to create a strong national government that would not threaten the liberties so recently won. The solution the Framers embraced was to diffuse the national governmental authority. Power was to be shared among separate institutions – the legislature, the executive, and the judiciary – in order that no single branch could become so powerful as to threaten the liberties of the people. In our study of the allocation of authority in the Constitution, it is important to keep in mind the purpose of this allocation – nothing less than the preservation of liberty.

The Framers looked primarily to the president to provide the critical element of "energy" in the government. The problem with the government of the Articles of Confederation had been that it was "destitute of energy." The drafters of the Constitution redressed that problem by vesting "competent powers" in the executive to lead the Nation.

The president's popular mandate justified this grant of authority. The president and the vice president are the only officials in our government elected through a process involving all the voters. Only the president can claim to speak for all the people, because, as Hamilton wrote, his selection looks "in the first instance to an immediate act of the people of America." The office of president has "a due dependence on the people, and a due responsibility."

Perhaps the most pervasive responsibility of the president is to administer the executive branch. The Framers were practical men who recognized, as Hamilton wrote, "that the true test of a good government is its aptitude and tendency to produce a good administration." The people look ultimately to the president to ensure the efficient performance of duty by the millions of federal employees scattered among the various departments and agencies.

The challenge confronting the modern presidency is to "produce a good administration" when the federal establishment has grown so far beyond anything the Framers could have imagined. It is an amazing fact that there are more federal employees today than people living in America when the Framers drafted the Constitution. Perhaps President George Washington could play an active role in supervising the details of the first administration, but it is now the responsibility of his successors to create mechanisms for the control and coordination of the executive branch.

The president has no more important responsibility under the Constitution than the conduct of foreign affairs. The Framers recognized that of the two democratic branches, only the executive could successfully conduct foreign relations. Hamilton noted in his description of the executive that "Decision, activity, secrecy, and dispatch will generally characterize the proceedings of one man in a much more eminent degree than the proceedings of any greater number," and John Jay – himself one of our most successful early diplomats – argued that "the President will find no difficulty to provide" those qualities, though they were beyond the capability of a basically deliberative body such as Congress.

Apart from executive functions, the Constitution accords the president a significant role in the legislative process. The people have grown to expect leadership from the president not only in executing the laws but also in presenting a legislative program to Congress for consideration.

Perhaps the most prominent of the president's legislative powers is the qualified veto power. This power is qualified in the sense that a bill returned by the president with disapproval can nonetheless be enacted into law by a two-thirds vote of both houses. The Framers accorded the president a veto power for two reasons. First, they recognized the "propensity of the legislative department to intrude upon the rights, and to absorb the powers, of the other departments" and provided the president a veto so that he could defend the prerogatives of his office. The second purpose of the veto was as "an additional security against the enaction of improper laws."

The powers of the presidency are limited, and the president discharges constitutional responsibilities in a system according other powers to the coordinate branches of the legislature and the judiciary. The members of all three branches take an oath to uphold the Constitution, and it is a monument not only to the genius of the Framers but also to the statesmanship of those who have held office under the Constitution that the system has worked as well as it has.

Presidents have learned advisors at their disposal, and they can consult with Congress, but the difficult and potentially momentous decisions the Constitution vests in the executive are, in the final analysis, the president's alone. Our most tested president, Abraham Lincoln, announced a guide for making those decisions that has yet to be bettered:

I desire so to conduct the affairs of this Administration that if, at the end, when I come to lay down the reins of power, I have lost every other friend on earth, I shall at least have one friend left, and that friend shall be down inside of me.

Navy scientific-technical director named at NSTL

The Navy reports appointment of Dr. Lloyd R. Breslau as Scientific and Technical Director of the Naval Oceanographic Office located at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

Dr. Breslau was formerly technical director of the Army's Cold Region Research and Engineering Laboratory (CRREL) in Hanover, New Hampshire.

He has taken over the position vacated by Henry C. Beck who retired in May.

The selection of Dr. Breslau was made by Captain James E. Koehr, USN, commander, Naval Oceanography Command, the parent command of the Naval Oceanographic Office.

Dr. Breslau has had a long and distinguished career in applied oceanographic research and development and is the author of numerous scientific publications and reports.

Before joining CRREL in August 1982, he held various research posts with the Coast Guard over a ten year period.

From 1967 to 1969 he was employed as head of the Coastal Oceanography Branch of the Naval Oceanographic Office which was then located in a Maryland suburb of Washington.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y. in 1935, he was educated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) where he received baccalaureate degrees in geology and in electrical engineering, a master's degree in geophysics, and the doctorate degree in oceanography in 1964. The latter was earned at MIT and the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

Breslau is married to the former Fernande Portal. They have a daughter, Audrey, who is a student at the University of New Hampshire.

The Naval Oceanographic Office is responsible for Navy's oceanographic; hydrograhic; and mapping, charting, and geodetic efforts.

DR. LLOYD R. BRESLAU

Data to support these efforts are gathered by twelve oceanographic survey ships and three specially configured aircraft under technical control of the Office, as well as by satellite.

The Naval Oceanographic Office was relocated to Mississippi in 1976.

Jim McMurtray appointed special NASA lecturer

Jim McMurtray, aerospace education specialist at the National Space Technology Laboratories, has been appointed by NASA as special lecturer in astronomy and planetary science for events nationwide.

The appointment was made by the NASA Headquarters Educational Programs Division in Washington, D.C.

McMurtray will continue to present programs for NSTL on NASA activities and those of NSTL's resident agencies.

A former planetarium director, McMurtray has more than 17 years experience as an educator. He developed and produced "Starlight," an instructional planetarium presentation on the physics of stars which has been shown in planetariums across the nation.

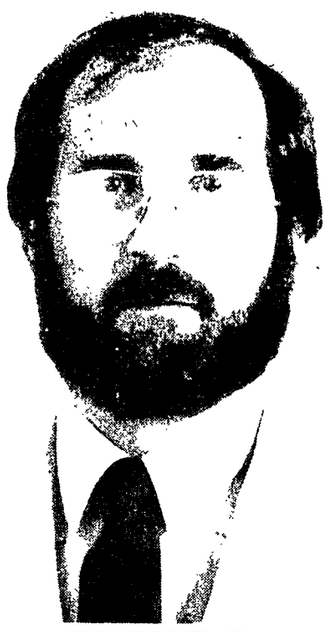

McMurtray recently returned from Venezuela where he presented programs to schools and other groups in three cities as part of his new assignment.

He said, "1986 will be the biggest year we've ever had in astronomy and planetary science and NASA's Educational Programs Division is gearing up to rapidly channel the results of upcoming major scientific missions to the classroom."

Among next year's activities, McMurtray cited the Voyager II spacecraft encounter with Uranus, the Space Shuttle Astro mission to investigate Comet Halley, the Galileo mission to study Jupiter and the launch of the Space Telescope.

McMurtray will be participating in the events and conferences accompanying these activities as well as in the delivery of information to educators and the media.

McMurtray has extensive experience as a lecturer on astronomy and related sciences at college, high school and elementary levels. In June he served as an instructor in the "Teacher in Space" program when he conducted workshops in astronomy and future NASA projects for the 114 program candidates.

A native of Indianola, Miss., McMurtray resides in Long Beach with his wife, Donna, and their five children.

HOLLYWOOD – There's more to Donna Mills than meets the eye (second part of two-part interview).

In addition to ambition and independence, Donna recently exhibited intestinal fortitude when on a New York city street she foiled a would-be mugger, chased him down, cussed him out and literally made a citizen's arrest.

"I don't know what came over me, I turned into someone I didn't know," she notes with amazement as she recalls her terrifying experience with a fast-footed Gotham purse-snatcher. "He approached me from behind as I was walking down 45th Street with two girlfriends. As I felt my shoulder bag open, I turned around and saw this guy standing right behind me. When I turned I screamed at the top of my lungs 'Drop it!' Still screaming I added, 'You've got my wallet and you'd better drop it before I kill you!' As my two friends looked on in disbelief he dropped my wallet and started to run down the street. I ran after him and continued to yell very choice and to the point thoughts regarding him and his family heritage."

As two of New York's mounted police came to Donna's aid she caught the mugger, reclaimed her wallet and continued her verbal assault on the man who by now had realized his poor choice in potential victims. "I don't think he planned on this crazy woman turning around and grabbing him," says Donna in a voice of self-astonishment.

The aura of her television character took center stage after the incident as a crowd gathered around Donna, her two mounted Galahads and the mortified mugger. As the New Yorkers recognized one of their favorite "Knots Landers", Donna, still unshaken by the event, turned to a stranger and said, "He should have known better than to mess with Abby."

Her reaction in New York offers insight into what lies behind the blue eyes of Donna Mills. This lady, who got her first real break playing Clint Eastwood's girlfriend in the classic film "Play Misty For Me," has learned to be tough. She's learned how to handle rejection, and she's learned the merits of hard work.

"I think in any business, the most successful people work 14- to 16-hour days. You don't get there without being willing to do that kind of work and put in that kind of time. Most people are simply not willing to work that hard. If you are willing to work and you stay with it and you have any kind of talent, you'll make it."

As Abby Cunningham she has without a doubt created public awareness. As Donna Mills she's always causing public reaction. Be it in the arms of a "Knots Landing" co-star or on the heels of a New York mugger, there is definitely more to Miss Mills than meets the eye.

TREE PLANTING WEEK

Mississippi's twelveth Annual Tree Planting Week has been set for this coming February 14th-20th, according to Chauncey Tanner of Heidelberg who was recently chosen to repeat as Statewide Tree Planting Week Chairman in 1986 at a meeting of the State Tree Planting and Forest Development Committee.

All 82 counties in the State joined in the 1985 week-long "Celebration of Trees" event that begins on Arbor Day each year.

Ceremonial tree planting was particularly heavy during 1985's event at schools across the state. A total of 501 schools participated - second highest total in the history of Tree Planting Week.

SEEDLINGS STILL AVAILABLE

"It's one of the best seedling crops we've ever had."

That's how Mississippi Forestry Commission Resource Management Chief Freddie Jordan characterizes the tree seedlings grown this year in Commission nurseries located at Winona, Mt. Olive and Waynesboro.

Jordan says more than half of this years select pine and hardwood seedlings have already been sold, but there's still a good number of Loblolly Pine and several other species left. Order forms are available at local county forester and county agent offices.

Delivery of the tree seedlings begins in early December, (weather permitting) and runs until early Spring.

The commission will bundle up it's two billionth baby tree since 1926 at some point about midway through the current lifting season, according to Jordan.

Almost 29 million baby trees are still nestled in beds and marked "unsold" at the commission's three nurseries according to an October inventory and seedling sales listed through Nov. 19.

Most of the seedlings are Loblolly Pine (27,027,750), but there are also plenty of Slash Pines (1,459,000) and much smaller amounts of Baldcypress (90,142), Green Ash (44,150) and yellow Poplar (19,550).

Jordan is advising landowners who want to plant seedlings under the available cost-share programs this winter not to delay ordering seedlings.

"We usually have a last minute rush of orders come in about this time every year and unfortunately some may arrive too late to be filled before the supply runs out," he said.

Jordan said the good supply of Loblolly Pine seedlings still unclaimed leads him to believe that some landowners may be holding off ordering to see if Congress passes a farm bill with additional tree planting incentive payments in it.

"They needn't wait though," says Jordan, "because even if a conservation reserve program passes this session its not very likely to clear all the administrative hurdles in time to affect this year's planting plans. It's also going to be pretty restrictive in terms of the land that will qualify for payments."

Jordan added an interesting note on this year's seedling crop: "We'll be lifting our two billionth seedling since 1926 from one of our nurseries sometime during the next several months," he said.

These days of falling revenues are causing city managers to look at every possible source of funds. Little do they suspect that people who plant trees in their yards may be helping municipal revenues.

A study of single-family-house sales in Athens, Georgia, showed that a three to five percent increase in prices obtained was associated with the presence of trees in the landscaping.

Conclusions were based on data from real estate records on more than 800 house sales from 1978 to 1980. The study was conducted by L. M. Anderson and H. K. Cordell of the U. S. Forest Service, Southeastern Forest Experiment Station, Athens, and reported in the 'Southern Journal of Applied Forestry' (August, 1985).

We all know that trees improve the looks of property and also provide shade, wind resistance, wildlife habitat and reduction of air and noise pollution. Urban foresters also have touted the monetary value of trees to homeowners for some time now because of the higher price home sites with trees will bring.

But before now, we have not emphasized that these higher prices add extra money to city coffers because of the higher property value that trees give to homes.

According to the magazine article, "The average house sold for about $47,000 and had five front-yard trees visible in its Multiple Listing Service photographs. An average sales price increase of $1,700 to $2,100 was associated with the presence of these trees. This increase in property value represents an income of over $200,000 a year to the city in property tax revenue.

"On the average, houses with trees in the front yard sold for prices between three to five percent higher than houses without trees. Other factors, such as builders' tendency to build better houses on wooded lots, were noted as well," according to the Anderson and Cordell article.

The authors also pointed to research conducted in the Northeast in the 1970s that indicated that undeveloped acreage sells for a higher price when it has a good tree cover. This study showed that developed residential property with trees sells for between six to seven percent more than property without trees.

In a third study, this one conducted by the International Society of Arboriculture, (ISA), houses on lots with more tree cover sold for $9,500 more than houses on lots with little tree cover, a 17 percent increase. The ISA study looked at 60 houses that were roughly equivalent in size of lot and house, number of rooms, and age.

"In the Southeast, builders in two studies have reported that homes on wooded lots sell sooner and for higher prices than homes on unwooded lots... In Atlanta, builders reported that total sales price averaged about seven percent higher for houses on lots with trees," the Anderson-Cordell article said.

Carbon monoxide

(Presented as a public service by the Mississippi State Medical Association and this newspaper.)

Carbon monoxide poisoning is usually associated with automobiles, but it can occur just as easily in your own house if you are not careful, reminds the Mississippi State Medical Association. Each year in Mississippi carbon monoxide poisoning causes tragic, accidental deaths.

Carbon monoxide (CO) is a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas produced every time a carbon-containing material burns. The reason this gas is so dangerous is that CO combines with blood 200 times more easily than oxygen. If you breathe air containing a normal amount of oxygen and even a moderate amount of CO, your blood will be starved for oxygen. When your blood cannot supply the oxygen to the brain, permanent brain damage and even death can result.

Dangerous amounts of CO can accumulate when a cool, slow fire burns in a limited air space. Since you cannot see, smell, or taste it the gas is hard to detect except by its symptoms. They include: drowsiness, headache, tightness across the forehead, confusion, nausea, and muscular weakness. Carbon monoxide poisoning can confuse you to the point where you cannot reach fresh air and prevent serious injury.

The Mississippi State Medical Association makes these suggestions to help you prevent carbon monoxide poisoning in your home:

- Have all heating systems checked annually for operating efficiency. Make sure all vents, pipes, flues, and chimneys are tight.

- Make sure your heating plant is not starved for air.

- Provide additional fresh air for charcoal grills used indoors. Better still, always use charcoal grills outdoors.

- Don't close your fireplace damper until you are certain the fire is completely out.

- Be sure your garage is sealed from the house. And NEVER let your car's engine run in a closed garage.

- Be sure that all heating devices designed for venting are properly vented to the outside.

Nadine Stamm's 'Madonna' painted in 1966 inspired by St. Luke gospel

By Joe Pilet

There are some fine things that money cannot buy yet they are free to enjoy.

One such treasure is an oil painting of the Madonna and Child which may be seen in the window of Nadic Arts Studio on Main Street just across from the Hancock Bank in Bay St. Louis.

Nadine Stamm, the artist, used members of her family as models.

She started the work in 1966 and completed it within a year. Her inspiration came after reading from the Book of St. Luke, Chapter 2, Verses 8-19.

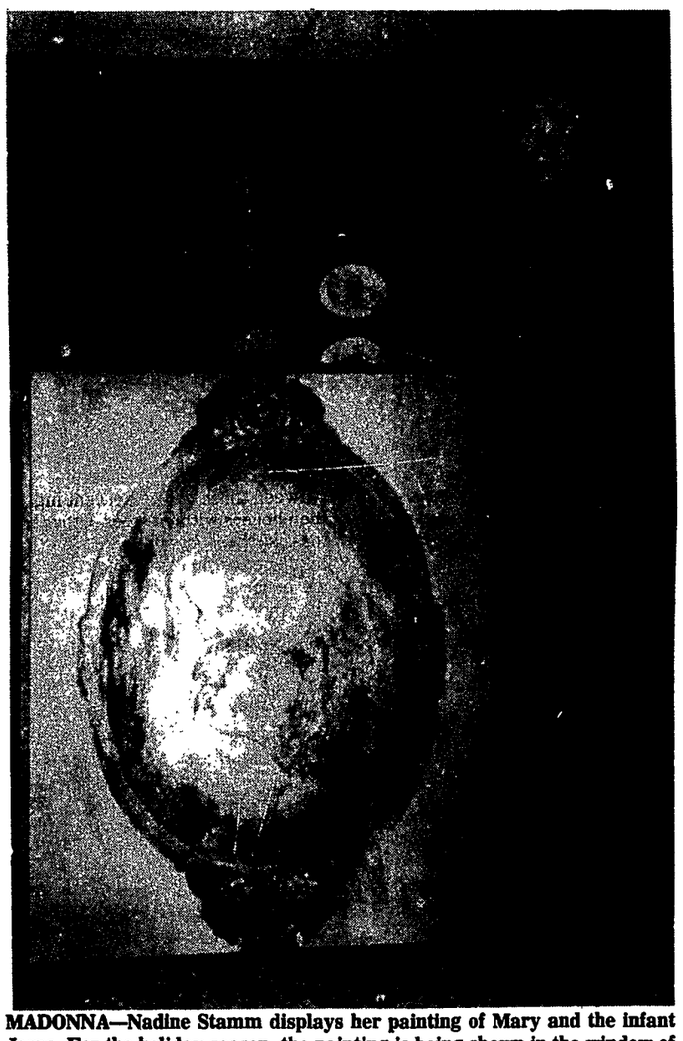

With deft fingers, an exceptional feel for color and the knowledge that her ability as an artist was a gift from her creator, she worked with confidence. The painting is timeless!

According to legend, St. Luke painted the first Madonna. The mother and child became symbolic of the accepted Christian faith.

Madonnas are usually divided into five classes, depending on the general style and treatment. This Madonna might be considered in the "home environment class," again it might highlight a new and distinct class influenced by modern art.

Peace and serenity are suggested in the mother's facial expression as she "ponders these things in her heart," and perfect trust is a characteristic of the sleeping babe.

The painting has a strong spiritual appeal and is displayed each year by the Stamms as an invitation to those who view it to share the joy of beauty best express through love of mother for child, and more especially the perfect love lavished by our Lord through teachings of Christianity.

Veterans job training program extended

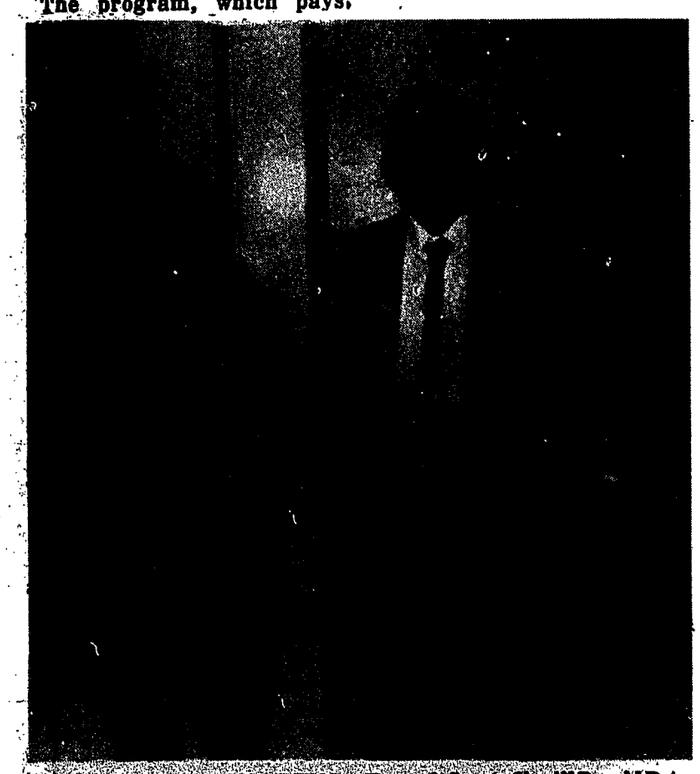

According to Samuel J. Maraman, director of the Jackson VA regional office, more than 2,000 eligible Mississippi veterans have until July 1 to begin an approved job training program under the Emergency Veterans' Job Training Act (EVJTA).

The VA mailed letters to those veterans informing them of the extended deadline and asking them to contact the VA Regional Office or nearest Job Service Office.

Congress extended the deadline by which an eligible veteran must enter a training program from Sept. 1, 1985, to July 1, 1986, in an attempt to assist those veterans who were issued EVJTA Certificates of Eligibility but could not be placed in an approved program of job training prior to the original expiration date.

The program, which pays employers directly to hire and train certain long-term unemployed Vietnam Era and Korean Conflict veterans, has been operational since November 1983. It funds 50 percent of the veteran's starting hourly wages up to $10,000, to provide a maximum of 15 months of training for certain veterans with service-connected disabilities, and up to nine months for other participants.

If assistance is desired, veterans and employers may contact the Jackson VA Regional Office between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. The statewide toll-free number is 1-800-682-5270. If you live in the Meridian area, call 693-6166; in the Gulfport/Biloxi area, call 432-5996. The number in the Jackson area is 965-4873.

SHERIFF AND TAX COLLECTOR—Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, left, checks Christmas present given to him from Hancock County Tax Collector-Assessor Edward Murtagh at the annual courthouse party held Tuesday. The party sponsored by Murtagh, Peterson, Circuit Clerk John Rutherford, and Chancery Clerk Mike Necaise had over 200 persons in attendance. A traditional Christmas dinner was served. ETV NEW YEAR

The party hats and streamers may be crumpled and cast aside, but the New Year's celebration continues on New Year's Day when an evening of Strauss music – Richard's and the Johanns' – fills Mississippi ETV's schedule.

From 8 p.m. until 9, on Wednesday, Jan. 1, "Karajan Conducts: Strauss' 'Alpine Symphony'" will be telecast, featuring what many critics consider to be one of the greatest orchestras of all time – the Berlin Philharmonic – and one of the greatest conductors as well – Herbert von Karajan. Composed between early 1911 and February 1915, "An Alpine Symphony," opus 64, is one of Strauss' most famous tone poems for orchestras and is scored for full orchestra.

From 9 until 10:30, Lorin Maazel leads the Vienna Philharmonic

BY KATY MC GUIRE CAIRE

As we look forward to the New Year, many of us will be holding Open House for small or large gatherings of family and friends.

Refreshments may be as simple or as elaborate as you wish—with various "nibbles" or more substantial foods spread on buffet or table, along with a pot of steaming coffee and some other sort of festive libation.

For many years, in New Orleans, we used to bid friends to Open House on the morning of New Year's Day, with rich, rich eggnog as the libation, along with coffee and a huge ham with all sort of accompaniments.

Here's the old family recipe—or "receipt" as the cooks of other days put it—for eggnog:

MCGUIRE'S EGGNOG

Separate the yolks and whites of a dozen eggs, placing them, of course into separate bowls also. To the yolks add a cup of sugar and beat well together.

Add a quart of cream (or the half-and-half of these days) along with generous dashes, say two teaspoons, perhaps a bit less, of vanilla, beating all the while. Then stir in, ever so slowly, a pint of good bourbon and two or three juggers (ounces) of rum.

Meanwhile, beat the whites of the eggs well, till stiff, and fold into the other ingredients. Chill the whole business at least a few hours - we used to chill it overnight, batches and batches of it.

Special note: whatever you do, be sure that you add the liquor very slowly, so that you don't "cook" the egg yolks and end up sorry. If you like your eggnog thinner, you may add some milk. And, of course, if you don't want to add liquor, it's tasty without it.

We always grate nutmeg over each cup as we serve the eggnog, but you may use ground nutmeg, instead.

Another delicious punch for the holidays, or at any other time of the year is:

CREOLE-CAJUN CAIRE'S GOURMET WINE PUNCH

Simple, but simply sensational! Pour into a punchbowl, over an ice ring or block of ice, a fifth each of burgundy, claret and port, along with a bottle of sparkling water (soda water). Stir, and serve in punch cups - of course, you mix up another batch or so, as needed, keeping to the same proportions.

You may make this with two fifths of burgundy and the fifth of port, if you can't find claret. And, welcome the New Year!

These folks are raising your insurance premiums.

IT'S TIME YOU PUT A STOP TO IT.

If you have liability insurance . . . on your car, your business, your home, anything . . . you are paying higher and higher insurance premiums. Why? One of the major reasons is some lawyers are convincing juries to award "punitive damages" of astronomical sums of money in injury cases.

Punitive damages are additional sums of money beyond the actual loss that are awarded to a plaintiff (one who sues someone else) in order to punish a defendant (the person being sued) for a negligent or wrongful act. Trial lawyers say that punitive damages help deter others from committing the same wrong act. The jury's still out on that point. What's certain is that a significant share of punitive damages money goes not to the plaintiff but to cover attorney fees and court costs.

Who pays for these enormous punitive damages? It's you, of course, as one of the thousands of Mississippians who pay insurance premiums to protect yourself. When an insurance company is told to pay $8 million in punitive damages due to a clerical error on a $20,000 insurance policy (as in a recent Jackson County case), your premiums go up! The company cannot pay an $8 million verdict on premiums figured for a $20,000 policy. The cost of that $8 million will be borne by the company's customers in the form of higher premiums. This is something you can put a stop to. If this sort of legal abuse keeps up, you may not be able to buy liability insurance at any price in the future. Ask your friends who run a child care center, or ask your doctor.

While plaintiff attorneys press for large settlements, it's the juries who actually award them. We respect the jury system — it's the American Way. But, a persuasive attorney can make a jury feel undue sympathy for the plaintiff. Ignoring common sense, the jury then gives away money based on emotion, not facts.

How can you put a stop to it?

1. When you are selected for jury duty, don't let your emotions cloud the truth. Base your decision on the facts of the case. Make awards relevant to the damages.
2. Tell your legislator you are tired of higher insurance premiums caused by punitive damages. Remember, punitive damages are in addition to the amount given to the plaintiff for his actual losses.

The Mississippi Legislature can join the many other states in curbing the skyward trend of punitive damages settlements and the subsequent rise in insurance premiums. Legislation will be introduced during the next session to help solve the problem of outlandish punitive damages. You're the one paying for these damages. And you can affect punitive damages legislation in a positive way. Contact your legislator and tell him of your concern.

Right now, it's the best thing you can do.

Hattiesburg professor sells movie rights

A university professor in South Mississippi—who is attracting widespread attention as a novelist and short-story writer—has sold movie rights to his latest novel.

A small, but successful theatre company purchased movie rights to 'Tracer,' Frederick Barthelme's most recent literary effort.

"They plan to make 'Tracer' a moderately-budgeted $3-4 million film, using actors and directors from within the company," said Barthelme, a 42-year-old English professor and director of the Center for Writers at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The company hopes in the new venture—its first film project—to transfer stage success to the motion picture arena, Barthelme explained.

"My understanding is that they will make the movie, then make a distribution arrangement with one of the major studios—Paramount or Fox, possibly," he said.

Barthelme finalized a deal for the movie rights with Steppenwolf Theatre Company Monday, Dec. 9. The company had been negotiating for the movie rights with Barthelme's agent since 'Tracer' was released last August.

Twentieth Century Fox bought movie rights to Barthelme's first critically acclaimed novel, 'Second Marriage,' early this year.

"I'm excited about (Steppenwolf's purchase of the movie rights) because I'll have a closer relationship than with Fox or some other, larger studio," Barthelme said.

Steppenwolf, based in Chicago and New York City, has experienced a lot of success recently. It has been written about in Time and Newsweek magazines and currently has a hit off Broadway called 'Orphans.'

The company produced 'True West,' which was a big hit on Broadway several years ago—running for nine months. A videotape of the play was shown on Public Broadcasting System television.

Gary Sinise, who will direct the 'Tracer' film, played in 'True West' with actor John Malkovich of 'Places of the Heart' and 'The Killing Fields' fame.

Steppenwolf already has financial backing for the 'Tracer' film, but is waiting on Barthelme to finish the screenplay. Barthelme said he hopes to finish the screenplay by January.

Meanwhile, it appears 20th Century Fox's adaptation of 'Second Marriage' is moving forward at an appropriate pace, Barthelme said.

"The film's shepherd staged a reading from the screenplay for some of Fox's higher-ups as a favor to the producer and it went very well. I gather there is much good feeling for the project."

The reading featured actor John Lithgow and actresses Tuesday Weld, Leslie Ann Warren and Angelica Houston.

Barthelme said he's been told 20th Century Fox will have screenwriter W.D. Richter—hired last spring to adapt 'Second Marriage' to film—make some revisions.

"My sense of it is they found his screenplay too standard and they want to get back some of the quirks from the book. They'll probably pull some of my screenplay out and put it into his."

The movie company originally hired Barthelme to write the screenplay for his book, then later hired the more experienced screenwriter to adapt 'Second Marriage' to film.

Both 'Tracer' and 'Second Marriage' are set along the Gulf Coast and focus on problems in marriage relationships. 'Second Marriage' features a happy ending to a broken marriage, while 'Tracer' presents a very unhappy ending. Both novels are set in rather zany environments.

Viking-Penguin Publishing Company recently came out with a paperback edition of 'Second Marriage' and will introduce 'Tracer' in paperback next year. Both books were originally published by Simon and Schuster.

Barthelme noted he just sold Brazilian-Portugese rights to 'Second Marriage.'

Both books have sold substantially as literary novels and hopefully will become more popular when released as movies, Barthelme said.

- Sleeping too much — or insomnia
- Confusion, inability to make decisions
- Loss of energy, fatigue
- Guilt feelings, lack of self-worth
- Lack of interest in work or play
- Loss of weight or excessive weight gain

LOW BACK PAIN

If back pains are a way of life for you, the reasons can be varied and complex. Some may be pathological, but very often the cause is muscles which are either over or under-exercised which are producing spinal distortion. Vertebrae slip into abnormal positions, resulting in "pinched" and irritated nerves, which cause pain and even loss of function of the affected body part. Poor posture, or even emotional tension, can be the root cause.

Commercial water users need state permit

Charles Branch, director of the Bureau of Land and Water Resources, said, "The Bureau has mailed notices to all known water users requesting that they file the necessary Notice of Claims in order to obtain a permit under the grandfather clause of the law."

Persons in Hancock County who do not receive a notice from the Bureau of Land and Water Resources in the next 30 days should contact the Bureau at Post Office 10631, Jackson, Miss. 39209, or telephone 961-5200.

The Bureau of Land and Water Resources is in the process of issuing permits to all qualified water users in Hancock County.

A law passed by the State Legislature in 1985 requires a permit for all surface and well water users.

Exceptions to the law include water wells for domestic use only, or wells with surface casings less than six inches in diameter. Also no permits shall be required for the use of surface water in impoundments which are not located on continuous, free-flowing watercourses.

Mississippi seeing trend toward alcohol-free teenage nightclubs

Mississippi is experiencing a trend toward non-alcoholic teenage nightclubs, according to the Highway Safety Division, Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs.

"Each year approximately 46 teenagers are killed in alcohol-related highway crashes," said Roy Thigpen, governor's representative for highway safety and director of Federal-State Programs' Department of Criminal Justice Planning. "Non-alcoholic teenage nightclubs can make an important contribution to combating this problem, and we believe more and more non-alcoholic nightclubs will be seen in Mississippi."

An example of such a nightclub is the Marz Bar in Jackson. Shelly Ann Bailey, its originator, was a Chicago junior college instructor when she heard from Mississippi relatives that teenagers were having difficulty finding wholesome recreational opportunities. She recognized this as a likely factor in Mississippi's teenage highway deaths and injuries and decided to move to Jackson and do something about the problem.

"Chicago has many alcohol-free recreational outlets for teenagers," Mrs. Bailey, the mother of a 15-year-old girl, said. "I felt that moving to Mississippi would give me the best opportunity to help teenagers."

The Marz Bar opened last month and already "appears to be just what the teenagers needed," she said. In a setting similar to adult nightclubs, the teenage facility can accomodate 225 teenagers enjoying dancing, talent competitions, video games, soft drinks, sparkling grape juice, hot dogs, nachos and a combination of chips, sour cream, chili, lettuce, tomatoes and cheese that Mrs. Bailey refers to as the "supreme."

She noted that "the Marz Bar is giving teenagers a wholesome alternative to frequenting parking lots and other areas where they consumed alcoholic beverages and then drove home or to another location. We had our grand opening on Nov. 27, and we've had big crowds ever since." Mrs. Bailey said.

The Marz Bar is open from 3 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays, from 3 p.m. to 1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays and from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Sundays.

Last spring, the Highway Safety Division launched an "Only Dorks Drink and Drive" campaign to reduce alcohol-related teenage deaths and injuries on Mississippi highways.

"We met with many teenagers in planning this campaign," said Checky Herrington, Federal-State Programs' director of program information, "and we, too, found that there was a need for more wholesome recreational outlets for teenagers. The Marz Bar and other alcohol-free teenage nightclubs in Mississippi are meeting a real need."

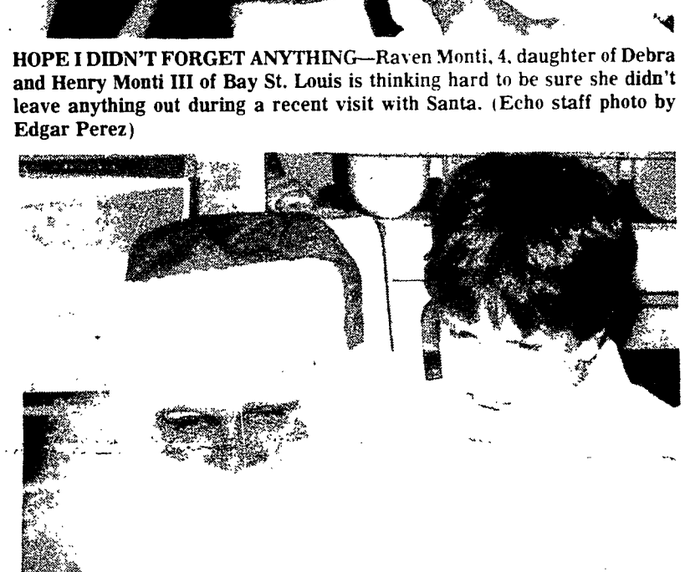

The term "dork," Herrington noted, is widely used by teenagers to describe a person who has little sense and is not respected by other teenagers. The campaign includes radio and television public service announcements, newspaper fillers, T-shirts, bumper stickers and a one-act play about the dangers of drinking and driving. The play is being made available to high schools across Mississippi.

"Teenage drivers are involved in one of five fatal highway crashes, and almost 60 percent of fatally injured teenage drivers were found to have alcohol in their blood in an Institute for Highway Safety study," Thigpen said. He referred to some alarming statistics about teenage drinking that resulted from a recent survey of Jackson high school students. The study showed that 86.7 percent of the students questioned said they had experimented with alcohol, 12 percent said they drink daily and 27 percent said they had experienced at least one "blackout" due to alcohol consumption.

"The Department of Criminal Justice Planning believes that one of the best deterrents to undesirable behavior is to provide an atmosphere where desirable behavior is encouraged," Thigpen said. "The Marz Bar and other alcohol-free teenage nightclubs give teenagers the recreational opportunities they need."
